

ABSTRACT

This invention relates to a target gene-knockdown animal and an animal model for disease in which mRNA of an endogenous target gene is disrupted via formation of double-stranded RNA for the target gene and a method for producing the animals. Also, this invention relates to a ds-RNA expression vector used for such method and an animal cell having such vector introduced therein.